General Personnel Board Bill Outlined

By HON. JOHN M. MORIN,

Chairman, House Military Committee.

SINCE the World War practically all studies of the subject by those interested in the welfare of the War Department have indicated the value to a selecting officer of the report made after a careful study by a board either already existing for the purpose, or especially designated.

Quotes General's Report.

The last report on the subject has been given by the General Personnel Board convened for the purpose of recommending action on the problem of promotion and retirement in the Army. Their report states:

This section provides for the composition, appointment, and duties of a board of general officers designated as the general personnel board. The national defense act requires that such a board prepare annually the eligible list of colonels of the line deemed qualified for appointment as brigadier general. The practice has proven sound and acceptable. The same act requires that the annual classification of officers be by a similar board. It is believed that the functioning of such a board might well be extended to other personnel matters concerning which the action of a disinterested board unaffected by local conditions is advisable. There is ample evidence that sentiment within and without the Army strongly favors the logical and desirable practice of having an impartial board of high rank consider all those matters that deeply affect the careers of officers, that involve consideration of relative merit and efficiency, and that involve an adjustment of the interest of the Government and of individuals. This bill contemplates many new duties of this character, which, added to those already prescribed by law, render essential the establishment of a continuing board of impartial and disinterested officers to act in a similar advisory capacity upon these important matters. The duties and the responsibilities of the board are such that there should be frequent, though not sudden and complete, changes in its composition and that there should be excluded from its membership officers of any other advisory agencies, such as the General Staff.

Duties Clearly Stated.

The duties of the board are clearly stated in the proposed bill. Of these the preparation of the general officer of the line eligible list and the classification of officers, are duties already assigned to boards of general officers. The duty of preparing lists of eligibles for appointment as chiefs and assistant chiefs of branches, i. e., as general officers of the staff, appears to require no comment. The interests of the branches are conserved by having the chief thereof an additional member of the board when a branch list is being prepared. The board is to prepare and revise the General Staff Corps eligible list, being empowered to add the names of officer graduates of the general service schools who are recommended and deemed qualified for General Staff duty. The board is likewise authorized to remove from the list the name of any officer who, in its opinion, is not suited for General Staff duty. Both of these steps are deemed wise and necessary. At present there is too strict a limitation upon the names that can be placed upon this list. The board is convinced that there are other officer graduates of the general service schools who can not now become eligible for General Staff duty, but who are particularly well fitted to perform such duty. While it may be possible to determine with reasonable accuracy the suitability of an officer for General Staff work, it is manifest that this fitness can not be absolutely demonstrated until he has been given such work to do. Thus subsequent developments may negative the conclusion that an officer is qualified, and there should be an impartial agency such as a board herein provided to strike his name from the list in such an event.

Previous experience has clearly indicated the need for some central authority to pass on the examinations of officers for promotion. The board provided for in this bill is deemed most suitable for this purpose. The operation of any system of promotion includes the removal from active service, upon their application or otherwise, of some officers. It is necessary that some agency review the applications of all kinds and, in the light of the conditions then existing in the Army of which it is cognizant, make recommendations relative to

Creation of Reserve Division Discussed

By BRIG. GEN. ROY HOFFMAN,
President, Reserve Officers' Association of the United States.

The measures authorizing creation of a Reserve Division in the War Department are now pending before the Senate and House Military Affairs Committees and hearings on the measure are planned as soon as possible. No comment has been made by the War Department on its attitude in respect to these bills and no report has been requested by the Committees.

SENATE Bill 3458, by Senator Reed, and House Bill 11683, by Mr. James, are identical. The principle upon which these bills is based is in accord with the action taken by the last convention of Reserve Officers at Milwaukee.

Status Must Be Fixed.

The Reserve component of the Army cannot be developed or made a dependable unit of strength in the National Defense plan without its status being legally defined, and a solid base to build from, fixed in the War Department. The object of this legislation is the development and administration of the Reserve, including its feeders, the C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. I assume all will have an opportunity to be heard through hearings which will doubtless be provided by the respective Committees on Military Affairs of the House and the Senate.

Only Seek Square Deal.

I feel sure that the Congress will listen to the voice of the Reserve Officer, who must feel that any law gives him a square deal, and is for the general good of the service in the development of National Defense; otherwise the law will fail and the National Defense Act fail as to the citizens' Reserve component.

Army Supply Bill in House

ACTION is momentarily expected in the House on the conference report on the 1929 War Department Appropriations Bill. No serious disagreement on the report is looked for. The Conference report was adopted by the Senate a few days ago. Senator Reed explained the slight changes made in the bill as follows:

On the item for reserve officers training which the Senate fixed by a roll-call vote, the action of the Senate stands. No change is made on that.

On the item of horses and mules for the Army, about which there was very serious disagreement, the House has conceded practically all that the Senate asked. They give us a total of 1,700 mules and 2,300 horses. The Senate had fixed the number at 2,400 horses and 1,931 mules. We got substantially all we asked.

On putting the Air Corps of the Army out of the lighter-than-air business, the House recedes and agrees to all of the Senate amendments.

We put in a considerable item for new fire control for the anti-aircraft guns at Panama, Hawaii, and in continental United States. The House has receded, so far as Hawaii and Panama are concerned, but has agreed to carry on further experimentation before spending a lot of money in continental United States.

The aviation increases were considerable. The Senate had authorized 40 bombing planes of a newly developed type in place of 23 authorized by the House. We compromised at enough money to buy approximately 35, so that the point raised is recognized.

On developments for the Air Corps in Panama, the House concedes all that is authorized by legislation; that is, the completion of Albrook Field, in Panama, and the completion of the hangar and radio station in Hawaii.

The next item of importance was the item of horses for the National Guard. We had provided for 500 horses for the guard. On that the House recedes entirely, and our full amount stands.

On the item of additional vacation, under pay, for caretakers of the animals of the guard, the Senate was forced to recede, and we receded for the reason that this year vacation with pay is being given

Aerial Coast Defense Study Held Essential

By HON. JOHN Q. TILSON,

Floor Leader, House of Representatives.

WHATEVER credit is due for the introduction in the House and Senate of resolutions providing for an investigation of the problem of control of aircraft for seacoast defense is in fact due to Senator Bingham of my home State, who, after giving the matter considerable study, prepared a resolution for introduction into the Senate, and later conferred with me in regard to introducing into the House of Representatives, a similar resolution.

Should Be Studied.

Even a casual examination of the subject convinced me that it is a matter calling for study, and that a joint committee of the two Houses of Congress is probably the best means of making the study. It seems that the Joint Board of the Army and Navy have never quite agreed on this subject, and there is always danger of conflict of authority, or at least, duplication of effort, so long as two Departments of the service have jurisdiction. It would seem to be the only wise thing to have a joint committee of Congress consider the question and try to arrive at a conclusion as to what is the best course to follow.

Too Important for Doubt.

Aerial defense for our coast line is far too important a matter to be involved in any doubt as to jurisdiction and control, and in the end the matter will probably have to be settled by legislative action. In such case the members of a joint commission would be able to render invaluable help in the settlement of the problem in the two Houses of Congress. I am glad to be of assistance in making possible this study.

Burton Resolution Opposed.

OPPOSITION to the passage of the Burton Resolution to prohibit export of war material to belligerent nations was registered with the House Military Committee this week by the War Department on the ground that it "will aggravate to no small degree the difficulty of accomplishment of an adequate national preparedness." In his letter to Chairman Morin, Acting Secretary of War Robbins stated that its provisions were so broad it could be construed as forbidding the exportation of rifles, shotguns and other firearms primarily intended for other purposes and in addition commercial products such as electrical and optical products, steel, copper and starch and all articles which might be of assistance in war. The letter said in part.

It is the policy of our Government to rely upon American industry to furnish munitions in the event of an emergency instead of building and maintaining large Government arsenals or quasi-Government plants. During the World War our Government arsenals produced less than 10 per cent of our war requirements and since the war we have dismantled our Government-owned armament industry to the point where it is imperative that a still greater reliance must be made on private industry for munitions in case of an emergency.

If now we limit our private industry by shutting off its export trade, we will reduce its ability to furnish our own necessities in time of need. It would require a great expenditure to construct and maintain Government plants of sufficient capacity to meet technical requirements such as ordnance and aircraft in a major war. In order to keep alive the art of making munitions so that in case of emergency private industry may return at once to the manufacture of arms and equipment for the United States, bills have been presented in the House and in the Senate (H. R. 450, 5662, and S. 1824) to authorize the War Department to place educational orders for small quantities of munitions with as large a number of commercial plants as practi-

Increase Is Forecast In Navy Program Bill

By M. H. McINTYRE.

DEBATE on the emasculated Naval Program bill is scheduled to start in the House on Tuesday, March 13. A special rule for consideration of the measure will be granted according to a statement by Chairman Snell of the House Committee on Rules. This followed introduction by Chairman Butler of the Naval Affairs Committee, of a resolution providing for consideration of the authorization in a general debate limited to six hours, with a reading of the measure for amendments carried on under the so-called five-minute rule.

Falls Short of Requirements.

The bill as it now stands falls far short of the actual requirements of the Navy and there are growing indications that a vigorous effort will be made on the floor of the House to remedy some of the deficiencies and materially increase the scope of the program.

Close observers believe there is a noticeable reaction in many quarters toward an upward revision of the program with the waning of the pacifist hysteria that followed the introduction and early consideration of the administration measure that contemplated bringing the Navy up to something approximating Treaty strength.

Does Not Cover Replacements.

The present bill is not comprehensive even as a replacement program and does nothing toward relieving the admitted inferiority of the U. S. Fleet even in cruiser strength. It provides for fifteen new 10,000-ton cruisers, while there are twenty-two obsolete cruisers now in active service that are to be scrapped on completion of the new ships.

There is a strong sentiment that, as suggested in the committee report, the three submarines and twelve destroyers authorized under the 1916 Building Program but never appropriated for, should be added to the new construction provided for in the pending bill and it is considered highly probable that this will be brought out forcefully in the debate on the floor.

The Senate Committee is marking time and watching developments in the House, but there is a strong sentiment there that the bill does not go far enough. There is a possibility that an effort will be made either in House or Senate to amend the bill so that it will carry the authorization for all the ships in the original program but with no effort to force more than the fifteen cruisers and one carrier for immediate construction, leaving the balance to be appropriated for at some future date.

Data has all been compiled in the department as to the cost and estimates will be ready for submission without delay after the final passage of the bill.

Text of Committee Report.

The text of the report follows:
The Committee on Naval Affairs of the House of Representatives, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 11526) to provide for the construction of certain naval vessels and for other purposes, having had the same under consideration, report the bill to the House without amendment and recommend that it be passed.

This bill is intended to meet the most urgent needs of the Navy without unnecessary delay. The addition to our naval forces of the 15 8-inch gun cruisers and one aircraft carrier authorized in the bill will help to remedy the weakness of our fleet in these respects if their construction be undertaken within the next three years. The committee does not attempt to forecast possible further developments in other countries, or at the naval conference to be held in Washington in 1931, and makes no proposals for laying down vessels after that year.

Consideration has been given to the request for destroyer leaders, of which our Navy has none, and for submarines of

Press Forecasts New Era for Philippines as Stimson Assumes Post

A NEW era in the development of the Philippines is seen by editors commenting on the inaugural address of Governor General Henry L. Stimson and the United States' Philippine policy. The favorable reaction from all sources to Col. Stimson's remarks are interpreted as indications of a new cooperative policy in the Islands, which will mutually benefit the Americans and Filipinos there.

IN the Islands themselves, press comment is approving. The Manila Bulletin, owned by Americans, says: "In simple, direct language the new Governor General pointed out the way to overcome manifest lack of development today by working together in a spirit of sympathetic cooperation." La Vanguardia, Spanish language daily, approved the address, expressing the opinion that while it set forth the traditional Republican policy for developing the Philippines, such a policy is needed.

THE Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier (Democratic) remarks, "The new Governor General of the Philippines has the advantage of knowing the Islands at first hand * * *. By and large Col. Stimson ought to make an able administrator for the Philippines from the Republican point of view. He brings to his new post a lawyer's qualities with the soldier's ideas playing through his mind."

THE Rochester Times-Union (Independent) comments on Col. Stimson as follows: "Mr. Stimson has shown in his work as the President's special representative in Nicaragua that he is willing to make a genuine effort to understand views of the native residents of countries under the supervision or direct control of the United States. His experience as head of the War Department will also prove valuable."

THE Chicago Daily Tribune (Republican), in discussing our Philippine policy, states: "With respect to the Philippines the United States is plainly drifting as to purpose. Its commitment is to eventual Filipino freedom. It has been from the beginning. The adopted policy is to prepare the Islands for Liberty and give it to them. * * * American occupation has produced American material interests. There is a national obligation to them. The American stake in the Philippines is related to future events in Asia * * *. At least one maxim retains its force in the Philippines as elsewhere. It is unsafe to assume responsibility without control."

THE Baltimore Sun (Democratic) calls the address "sensible" and continues: "Much of the unrest which has of late years been obvious in the Philippines is traceable to the failure of our previous executives at Manila to confine themselves to the task of governing the archipelago efficiently and quietly under the terms of its organic law. * * * It is a happy thought which makes Governor Stimson, at the outset of his administration, point out that his concern is with the present rather than the future. And the outstanding contemporary need of the Islands, as he frankly remarks, is development of their great economic potentialities."

THE New York Herald-Tribune (Republican) declares: "In his inaugural address as Governor General of the Philippines, Colonel Stimson laid stress on the idea that insular progress should be sought through economic and industrial development rather than through political agitation. The Philippine public has been fed up on politics. * * * This is the soundest kind of advice. The best possible thing for the Philippines to do is to give politics a vacation and turn to the vastly more important task of economic betterment and the leveling up of the masses."

THE New York Evening Post (Independent) voices the hope "that the good feeling Colonel Stimson has apparently evoked by his inaugural address will characterize his regime. Further political agitation would have the single effect of retarding the development of the Islands and postponing the day when their stability will justify reexamination of their relations with the United States."

THE New Orleans Times-Picayune (Democratic) feels that Col. Stimson "can be depended upon to maintain Republican colonial policy and tradition. As Secretary of War during the Taft administration, Mr. Stimson knows something of the Philippines and its problems * * * he has kept in touch with Philippine developments." The Washington (D. C.) Evening Star (Independent) stresses the fact that "the guardianship of the United States must continue to be exercised, perhaps for a long time, regardless of its own interests. In pursuance of this policy Col. Stimson will be of great service to the Filipinos and to the American Government."

THE Philadelphia Public Ledger (Republican) asserts: "The inauguration last week of Henry L. Stimson as Governor General of the Philippines took place under auspices pointing to a new era in the development of this archipelago. There have, during the last year, been many signs that a turning point has been reached."

Navy Construction Bill Now Pending Before House for Action

postwar type, in which our Navy is seriously deficient. Your committee makes no recommendations that additional vessels of the destroyer type be authorized, because the act of August 29, 1916, authorized 12 such vessels "to have the highest practicable speed and the greatest desirable radius of action," for the construction of which no appropriations have yet been made. Your committee regards this authorization as sufficient authority for the appropriation of funds to build the needed destroyer leaders.

The act of August 29, 1916, likewise authorized three "fleet submarines" for the construction of which no appropriations have yet been made. Your committee believes this authorization sufficient to justify appropriations for three submarines of a smaller type, between the S and V classes, of which we have none in commission at the present time, and recommends that appropriations therefor be made this year. Although we have only six submarines built or building of later-than war-time design and many submarines now carried on the Navy list have passed their allotted span of usefulness, your committee desires to consider plans looking to increased safety in operating submarines, as well as plans for two salvage ships projected in section 5 of the present bill, before taking any further action toward replacing those on the Navy list that are no longer safely and effectively serviceable.

Cruisers.

The bill authorizes the construction of 15 cruisers to be laid down in three equal groups during the fiscal years ending June 30, 1929, 1930, and 1931. The number and tonnage of these vessels of our Navy, now in being and in prospect, is not sufficient for our needs nor commensurate with the cruiser strength of other navies.

The needs of cruisers may be classed under two major heads—

First, for scouting and screening duties with the capital fleet. The superior speed of cruisers enables them to obtain information of the whereabouts and movements of the enemy fleet so that battle may be joined or evaded as conditions may dictate, while hindering similar information to the enemy. Moreover, their combination of speed and armament contribute an efficient element to the screen protecting the Battle Fleet.

Second, for dispersed cruising tasks, such as (a) protecting our main ports, the approaches to the Panama Canal, so vital to our trade and defense, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines, and other focal points; (b) protecting from raids our merchant shipping, and the transport of men and munitions; and (c) controlling the use of the seas.

The number of cruisers needed by the United States is determined by the requirements for these two kinds of service. According to the estimate of Earl Jellicoe, admiral of the British Fleet, at the Geneva naval conference last summer "it is the generally accepted view that, in a fleet, five cruisers are required for every three capital ships." On this basis, as the United States Fleet has 18 capital ships, the ratio would call for 30 cruisers with the capital fleet quite apart from any cruisers used for detached service.

This is two more than the number stated by Admiral Hughes, Chief of Naval Operations, as the minimum requirement of the United States Fleet. In his testimony before your committee Admiral Hughes explained with great detail the requirements of the capital fleet for auxiliary vessels and the functions which they were called upon to perform. He fixed the minimum number of cruisers for scouting and screening tasks at 26, which with 2 additional cruisers as destroyer flagships, make a total of 28 cruisers for service with the fleet (2 less than the number required by Admiral Jellicoe's formula).

Admiral Hughes further stated in his testimony before the committee that the United States should have a minimum of nine cruisers to guard focal points such as our principal ports on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, the Panama Canal, and the Hawaiian Zone, and that we needed at least six additional cruisers for convoy work, to guard commerce and transports and to patrol the seas. This makes a total of 15 required for detached control tasks. In other words, with the 28 cruisers for the capital fleet, and 15 for detached service, he estimated the minimum of our cruiser requirements as 43, summarized as follows:

|------------------------------------|----|
| Fleet | 26 |
| Destroyer squadron flagships | 2 |
| Focal points | 9 |
| Convoy | 6 |
| Total | 43 |

Your committee desires to emphasize that when the 15 cruisers proposed in this bill are completed the United States will have only 33 modern cruisers (of which 10 are of 6,600 tons displacement, and carry but 6-inch guns). This is 10 less than the essential minimum determined by the Navy General Board. Even if only 28 cruisers are detailed to our capital fleet as called for by Admiral Hughes, rather than the 30 indicated by Admiral Jellicoe's estimate of what is required, this will leave but five cruisers for guarding important points, for convoy work, for protecting commerce and for controlling the seas.

It is hardly necessary to add that if these cruisers for guarding important points, for convoy work, for protecting commerce and for controlling the seas.

It is hardly necessary to add that if these cruisers are not built the United States will have none for control duties and the capital fleet will be lacking 10 cruisers considered necessary to its safety and efficiency.

Relative Strength.

The requirements of our fleet can not, of course, be considered altogether apart from the naval developments of other countries. In the discussions of the Washington conference and the scrapping of battleships agreed to at that time the question of relative strength was the determining factor. It resulted in our sacrificing 30 battleships and battle cruisers with a total displacement of 755,380 tons. At the Geneva conference last summer, which had to do with auxiliary vessels in general and cruisers in particular, Ambassador Gibson in the opening speech of the first session said:

"Before suggesting tonnage allocations in the various classes, I desire to state that we frankly recognize that naval requirements are relative, that building programs on the part of one power may well require corresponding programs on the part of others, and that, if these limits were adjusted for one of the three powers, they should be so adjusted for all."

The tonnage allocations suggested by the American delegation as a basis of discussion are the following:

|-------------------------|----------------------|
| Cruiser class: | Total tonnage limits |
| For the United States: | 250,000—300,000 |
| For the British Empire: | 250,000—300,000 |
| For Japan: | 150,000—180,000 |

At the present time the numbers and tonnage of modern cruisers built, building, and appropriated for, in the case of these countries, stand as follows:

| | No. | Tonnage |
|----------------------|-----|---------|
| United States | 18 | 146,000 |
| British Empire | 63 | 386,636 |
| Japan | 33 | 206,415 |

In numbers of these modern cruisers ranked in the order of importance, the ratio stands today as follows:

|----------------------|-----|
| British Empire | 5.0 |
| Japan | 2.6 |
| United States | 1.4 |

In the total of their tonnage, ranked in order of importance, the following is the ratio:

|----------------------|-----|
| British Empire | 5.0 |
| Japan | 2.7 |
| United States | 1.9 |

If the 15 cruisers of 16,600 tons each, to be authorized in this bill, were constructed, even assuming that the British and Japanese were to abandon all present projects of further building, the situation would stand as follows:

| | No. | Ratio | Tonnage | Ratio |
|----------------------|-----|-------|---------|-------|
| United States | 33 | 2.6 | 296,000 | 3.8 |
| British Empire | 63 | 5.0 | 386,636 | 5.0 |
| Japan | 33 | 2.6 | 206,415 | 2.7 |

8-inch Gun Cruisers.

Since the Washington conference, the armament of new cruisers in all navies has been greatly strengthened. Instead of cruisers with 6-inch guns, cruisers with 8-inch guns, having a range of 7 miles greater, have been laid down by the principal navies. During this period the British Empire, 14; and Japan, 6. In addition, the United States has authorized and appropriated for six more 8-inch gun cruisers, the British, 1; and Japan, 2. The British have projected five more of this class to be laid down not later than 1929. During the six years from 1924 to 1929 the British program has averaged the laying down of approximately three 8-inch gun cruisers per year. If this rate continues during the years 1930 and 1931 the British in 1931 will have 26 such cruisers built, building, and appropriated for, whereas the United States will have 23 in a similar status, provided the cruisers in the accompanying bill are authorized, appropriated for, and laid down. Even this is not a complete comparison of the more powerful light-cruiser type, since no mention has been made of the four completed British cruisers of the Hawkins type, armed with 7.5-inch guns displacing approximately 10,000 tons each, and today averaging less than seven years of age.

Aircraft Carriers.

Your committee has made provision for the construction of one additional aircraft carrier. Under the Washington treaty both the unit tonnage and total tonnage of aircraft carriers was limited in the case of each of the naval powers signatory to the treaty.

At the present time we are 56,200 tons under our treaty allowance, and as part of our existing tonnage—namely, the U. S. S. Langley—is denoted as experimental in the treaty we may, when we consider conditions warrant it, build 69,000 additional tons of aircraft carriers and scrap the U. S. S. Langley of 12,700 tons.

Our present effective strength in this type of vessel consists of only two units, the recently commissioned Saratoga and Lexington, totaling 66,000 tons. Until such time as experiments in the operation of these vessels has shown clearly the type of carrier most suited to our needs, it is the judgment of your committee that further carrier tonnage other than that proposed in this bill should not be authorized for the present.

Your committee has been impressed by the statements made before it that increased efficiency may be expected to be obtained by building our remaining allowed tonnage of aircraft carriers as vessels of approximately 13,800 tons.

It is estimated that such ships can operate 72 planes compared to the 77 larger planes operating from the 33,900 tons carriers, Lexington and Saratoga. Such an increase in the number of mobile landing and operating stations per ton of ship has been the factor that has decided your committee to provide for this small type of carrier by limiting the amount of money that may be spent on its construction. It is believed that the reduced speed of the new carrier and the absence of any 8-inch guns will be compensated for in large measure by the advantages in the smaller type just mentioned.

At the present time the tonnage of aircraft carriers built, building, and appropriated for is as follows:

| | Tons |
|----------------------|---------|
| United States | 78,700 |
| British Empire | 107,550 |
| Japan | 63,300 |

In addition Great Britain has one carrier on her announced program to be laid down in 1929.

The tonnage of aircraft carriers allowed by the Washington treaty is as follows:

|---------------------|---------|
| United States | 135,000 |
| Great Britain | 135,000 |
| Japan | 81,000 |

aircraft carrier provided for under the terms of the bill for the ensuing year.

Section 3: Section 3 requires the authorized construction to be undertaken subject to the limitations prescribed by the Washington treaty. That treaty limits the tonnage of light cruisers to 10,000 standard tons and the caliber of the armament to 8 inches. In the case of aircraft carriers the treaty's terms, aside from limiting the total tonnage that may be built, limits each vessel to 27,000 tons, after the completion of the converted cruisers Saratoga and Lexington into aircraft carriers.

Section 4: Section 4 is inserted in order that the President may, in his discretion, suspend the work undertaken on this program, in all or in part, should the United States become signatory to an international agreement for the further limitation of naval armament.

Section 5: The committee regards itself as not only under an obligation to recommend to the Congress the construction of such vessels as are required adequately to safeguard the interests of the United States but provide for the safety of the personnel serving the Navy and the country. With this thought in mind section 5 has been approved so as to provide that the Secretary of the Navy will submit at the beginning of the next session of Congress the preliminary plans, specifications, and estimates of costs, for the construction of the two salvage vessels, for use in ship repair.

The construction of the ships recommended by your committee involves an expenditure of $274,000,000 for construction, spread over a period of approximately six years. The estimated cost by years, in order to complete this construction program, is as follows (figures are in millions of dollars):

|--------------------|-----|-----|-----|-----|-----|-----|------|
| 1928 Program. | '29 | '30 | '31 | '32 | '33 | '34 | Tot. |
| 1 airplane carrier | 3 | 6 | 6 | 4 | ... | ... | 19 |
| 15 light cruisers | 10 | 37 | 65 | 75 | 48 | 20 | 265 |
| | 13 | 43 | 71 | 79 | 48 | 20 | 274 |

The foregoing program is intended to so round out our naval forces as to make them reasonably competent to support our policies and safeguard our interests throughout the world. Its purpose is to insure that these policies and interests will be respected and peace maintained. It is in no sense a competitive program, since the essence of competition is the effort to exceed or outdistance another. The program when completed will still leave our Navy in a secondary position.

Minority Report Submitted.

Mr. McClintic, the only member of the committee to dissent from the majority report, stated that in the event the House favored his proposal to alter battleships, he would strike out the authorization for the additional aircraft carriers costing $19,000,000 and substitute an expenditure of $1,000,000 on each of the 15 battleships to convert them into aircraft "carriers with facilities for the handling of bombing planes."

In concluding Representative McClintic declared: "I am in favor of voting every dollar that this country needs to provide adequate defense; however, I am not willing to expend $274,000,000 to stop a depression in the shipbuilding industry and to provide additions to the Navy in the way of personnel and luxurious quarters on a type of ship that cannot be used in time or war without the aid of submarines and aircraft."

Scores British Propaganda

EXPLOITATION of British views on naval questions to an extent that he claims savors strongly of British propaganda in a recent issue of the San Diego Sun has elicited a vigorous protest from Capt. W. P. Cronan, U. S. N., retired.

In the following letter to the editor of the Sun, Capt. Cronan voices his objections in no uncertain terms and furnishes a refreshing change from the deluge of pacifist and British propaganda letters that have been swamping members of Congress of late:

Being retired from active service in the Navy, it is as an American citizen, rather than as a Naval Officer, that I desire to make emphatic protest against the tenor of Mr. Tracy's column in the Sun, published on Saturday, February 18, 1928.

Mr. Tracy states, "British naval technicians have decided that the 10,000 ton cruisers are an inefficient type of vessel and not worth the cost of their construction."

He quotes from the Engineer, a technical British Journal, "Proportionate to their size they are the most vulnerable warships ever built. It is difficult to see how they could survive a determined attack, the success of which would involve not merely the loss of a costly ship, but the lives of 700 people crowded into her fragile hull. No wonder then, that most naval opinion in every country but the United States favors reversion to a more reasonable type of cruiser."

Mr. Tracy also states, "To the layman, the 10,000 cruiser is neither fish nor flesh. She is not big enough to fight capital ships and she is too big to chase subs and merchantmen."

Being informed as to the motives which prompt the experts of our Navy in making their recommendations to Congress, I feel that citizens generally, not being well informed as to the technical questions involved, may well abide by the responsible advice of their naval servants, who do not make Naval policy, but are merely advisors to Congress in technical matters.

Whether we have a Navy at all, or what the composition of our Navy should be, if we need one, is a matter for Congress to decide, with due regard for existing conditions.

The writer has admiration and respect for the policy of the British government in respect of their Navy; they have never taken advice from foreign sources. If Mr. Tracy's column were British propaganda it would not be so obviously worded.

Army Supply Bill in House

to those caretakers, and it was believed the department could manage to do so next year with the same amount of money.

On reserve flying we had to make the most serious of all concessions. For the reason that the War Department has not sifted out the older flyers who would not be suitable for active war work, it was thought best to hold the amount for reserve officers' flying at the figure fixed last year. The House had reduced it somewhat. We got it back to last year's figure and we can not increase it, and I think ought not, until the War Department has sorted out those who will be efficient in war, and gives them alone the benefit of that training.

The item we put in for horses for the Reserve Officers' Training Corps stands. The House recedes.

In substance, we provided for the training of 40,000 civilian boys in the summer training camps. The House has received in principle on that, and we have changed the wording of the amendment slightly, leaving in the amount of money as passed by the House, and providing that the department should train as many as they could with that sum, but forbidding transfers from other funds for that purpose.

Housing Bill Before Senate

THE Army Housing Bill carrying $12,964,950 for construction at various Army posts passed the House under suspension of rules on March 5 and is now before the Senate. There was considerable debate in which the members pointed out to Representative Blanton that his objections to the measure were based on misapprehensions. During the debate Representative Furlow paid high tribute to the efforts of Congressman James in traveling 25,000 miles to get material on which to base the bill.

In replying to Mr. Blanton's charge that his wife had visited a general's wife who had a house with 10 baths and complained that she had only one servant to take care of the quarters, Mr. Boylan said in part:

"The gentleman cites the case of an officer's family in Washington having a house with 10 baths. Down at Fort Jay we found instances where there was barely one bath in an officer's quarters. But these splendid gentlemen, wives of the officers, uttered no complaint. They had the true Army spirit. They tried to make the best of it. But I tell you, gentlemen, it is a disgrace to the United States to have our men, both commissioned and noncommissioned, housed in these miserable hovels. I do not see how you can get a man to join the Army. I do not see how you can get men who are willing to take the course at West Point and then come out and live under the hardships such as these men have to live in."

The only changes in the House bill as outlined in the Army and Navy Journal of February 18, were the inclusion of $300,000 for housing at Fort Slocum, $246,000 for barracks and $54,000 for N. C. O. quarters. At Fort Sam Houston an appropriation of $900,000 for barracks was split into $870,000 for barracks and $30,000 for a post signal communication center.

The Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, as well as the Regular Army, expressed pleasure at the bill's passage, since the Association has consistently urged proper housing of the Army.

The Fredericksburg - Chancellorville Battlefields Memorial Commission, headed by Maj. Gen. John L. Clem, has begun the work of marking the battlefields in that section. V. M. Fleming, formerly of the Confederate Army, and Capt. G. F. Hobson, Q. M. C., are the other members of the commission.

The 61st Coast Artillery (A. A.), Fort Monroe, Va., recently closed its annual contest for qualification of gunners. This annual contest has proven to be a most effective scheme for stimulating interest in qualification among the members of the regiment.

The percentage of men qualified, based on number of men in battery required to qualify are:

| Battery | Expert | First class | Second class |
|---------------|--------|-------------|--------------|
| Hq. | 86.79 | 90.57 | 96.23 |
| "A" | 77.27 | 86.33 | 100.00 |
| "B" | 90.00 | 97.14 | 100.00 |
| "E" | 78.69 | 90.16 | 95.08 |

Average qualified for all classes: Hq. Battery, 91.20; Battery "A", 87.87; Battery "B", 95.71; Battery "E", 87.87.

As will be seen, Battery "B" with an average of 95.71 per cent, won the contest. A suitably inscribed banner will be given to the winning battery. A gunners' qualification thermometer, changed weekly, was kept posted on the battery bulletin boards, showing the standing of each battery. Much interest was taken in this means of keeping the battery informed of its progress and at each new posting of results, efforts were redoubled to boost the red line still higher.

The item which appeared in the issue of March 3 stating that with the promotion of 1st Lt. H. P. Stewart to the grade of Captain the last of the officers demoted in 1922 had reached the rank he held prior to demotion was incorrect. The War Department has added to the list of battlefields under historical study by the Army War College in connection with proposals for commemoration, the battlefields of Iuka and Eastport, Miss.

Maj. Gen. J. T. Leitch, U. S. A., was retired from active service March 5, 1928. He was born March 5, 1864, and entered the Military Academy in 1884, being commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the 24th Inf. in 1889. He held the rank of Major General during the latter part of the World War and was awarded a Distinguished Service Medal. He was graduated from the Army War College in 1914.

INCREASED RANK FOR U. S. M. C. COMMANDANT SUGGESTED.

IN conjunction with the discussion for increased rank for the Chief of Staff of the Army and the Commanding Generals of the Departments, recommendations will be submitted to the House Naval Affairs Committee to accord the Major General Commandant the rank of Lieutenant General. The matter has been informally considered and it is felt that in the event of favorable action on the Army measure this rank should be given to General Lejeune as head of a separate military organization. Advocates of the plan point out that the duties and responsibilities of the Major General Commandant are commensurate with those of the highest commands in the Army, as he has command of 18,000 men on duty in all parts of the globe and is called upon to coordinate widely varied activities. In addition, the fact that the Marines are utilized to protect American life and property in foreign countries are given as an additional argument for the increased rank.

It is felt that the proposal will meet with much favor on the Hill, not only on its merits, but in view of the personal equation involved. General Lejeune has won an enviable position as a soldier and administrator which is universally recognized. Both in the House and Senate he has many friends and admirers who would like to see real recognition given him for his war services.

STIMSON REPLIES TO CRITICISM OF ASSISTANTS.

COL. HENRY L. STIMSON, Governor General of the Philippines, intends to have the "best available" assistants in his task of administering the Islands. Criticism leveled at the Army members of his administration, the alleged "Cavalry Cabinet" was answered by Col. Stimson in interviews with H. F. Misselwitz, of the New York Times.

He asserted that he was choosing the men "best fitted for the jobs they are in, no matter whether they happen to be military or naval men or former members of our services, if they are the best men for the posts. The conception that these members of my Administration were chosen because they are military men is absurd. There are civilians in my Administration."

Brig. Gen. Halstead Dorey, U. S. A., and Col. Blanton Winship, U. S. A., are two of his ablest assistants. A radiogram from Manila received here recently announced that Comdr. Jules James, U. S. N., had been made aide to Col. Stimson. Comdr. James was in command of the U. S. S. Edsel prior to this assignment.

CAPTAIN STEELE'S SELECTION PLEASES SERVICE.

SELECTION of Captain George W. Steele, jr., U. S. N., to succeed Captain Richard D. White as Naval Attache at Paris is looked upon in the Service as a particularly happy one. Capt. Steele, who has been in command of the cruiser Pittsburgh, flagship of the Asiatic Fleet, and who prior to that was in command of the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J., and the Los Angeles, is especially well qualified for the duty he is to take up in the French capital, and Mrs. Steele, who was Mrs. du Puy, will prove a charming hostess.

Capt. White has completed his three-year tour at Paris and while his orders are in stereotyped form "to report to the Receiving Ship, New York," it is understood that he will, on arrival, be assigned to command one of the light cruisers of the Scouting Fleet.

THEATRIAN TALENT DISCOVERED IN SECOND LIEUTENANT.

PROWLING around in search of entertainment and what-not, the editor of "Terrible Tankers" weekly recently discovered that a member of the 15th Tank Battalion had been honored with a leading role in an amateur performance staged at the Polo Club, Ft. Benning, Ga. He reveals the discovery as follows:

When 2nd Lt. A. L. Cobb graduated from the United States Military Academy, and was assigned to this unit last summer the information preceded him here that he was a great baseball player and was known at West Point as "Ty Cobb" the second. Well, he came here and it was discovered that he was a football and basketball enthusiast, and he drew himself a job as coach right off the bat, but nobody ever said he was an actor, and no one probably, around here at least, would have ever discovered it, had the Editor not dropped in over at the Polo Club * * * to witness an amateur performance staged by the Sojourners, and lo, and behold to my amazement our own "Ty Cobb" was honored with the leading part in the play. Well, there's no use in taking up a lot of space to tell how well he acted his difficult assignment for the generous applause from a crowded house was evidence enough to indicate that the immense audience was highly pleased.

MAJOR RICHARDSON LEAVES ROME ATTACHE'S POST.

MAJ. R. C. RICHARDSON, Jr., U. S. A., who has been relieved as military attache at Rome by Maj. James L. Collins, U. S. Richardson's departure, a dispatch from the Eternal City states, as he was popular in social circles there.

ADMIRAL SWINBURNE ASKED BURIAL AT SEA.

REAR ADMIRAL W. T. SWINBURNE, U. S. N., Ret., who died March 3, was accorded his last wish by the Naval Service he loved so well, when the U. S. S. Omaha consigned his body to the sea about 20 miles off Loma, Calif., as he requested. Admiral Swinburne entered the Navy during the Civil War period and was retired in 1909.

TO ASSURE JOBS FOR SOLDIERS COMPLETING ENLISTMENT.

PLANS to assure jobs for soldiers completing their enlistments are underway in the Second Corps Area. The cooperation of business and labor leaders is being sought. At a luncheon given by Peter A. Brady, President of the Federation Bank and Trust Co., the project was discussed by leading industrial and military guests. Assistant Secretary of War Robbins and Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, were the guests of honor. Among those attending were Maj. Gen. H. E. Ely, U. S. A., and Capt. W. H. Wells, U. S. A.

INCREASED RETIRED ENLISTED ALLOWANCES NEEDED.

NECESSITY of an increased allowance for retired enlisted men is being called to the attention of members of Congress and there is considerable sentiment "on the Hill" in favor of legislation to accomplish this. An excerpt from a letter disclosing existing conditions follows:

"When we go sick in our own hospitals we must pay for subsistence, more than we ourselves receive for subsistence, quarters and clothing. And those of us who were World War Veterans and who served overseas 26 months, are denied World War Veteran Hospital privileges. This is again unfair to us, and might be rectified."

TO ALLOW RETIRED OFFICERS IN DIPLOMATIC SERVICE.

UNDER the provisions of an amendment to the Statutes which Comptroller General McCarl has construed as barring retired officers from posts in the diplomatic service, such officers will have the same status in the appointment as any other citizen. The Senate passed the bill containing the amendment this week after Senator Reed gave the following explanation:

SENATE PASSES AMENDMENT TO MANCHU ACT.

THE Senate this week passed the bill S. 1823 to allow certain specialists like radio experimenters, the graves registration officer in Europe and some chemists in laboratories to continue their special work without serving with troops once every four years.

SELECTION OF NULTON'S SUCCESSOR UNSETTLED.

MORE than a score of changes among the higher commands in the Navy are scheduled during the next few months and speculation is running high as to "Who's who and where." This is particularly true of the assignment of a successor to Rear Admiral L. M. Nulton as Superintendent of the Naval Academy, announcement of which is expected in the near future.

While a number of eligibles are mentioned in this connection, departmental gossip has switched from Rear Admiral W. H. Standley, who heads the division of fleet training in operations and has had more than six months' duty ashore and the favorite in the "winter booking" is now Capt. Wat T. Cluverius, U. S. N., who is far up in the Captain's grade. Other possibilities are said to be Rear Admiral D. F. Sellers, due for an assignment ashore; Vice Admiral Guy H. Burgess, soon to be relieved of command of the Forces in European Waters; Rear Admiral Sumner E. W. Kittelle, who is completing his tour of duty as commandant at Cavite; Rear Admiral W. W. Phelps, soon to be relieved of his command of the Fleet Base Force; Rear Admiral H. H. Hough and Rear Admiral Luke McNamee, soon to be relieved of command of Destroyer Squadrons, Battle Fleet.

Speculation of the fleet changes are handicapped by the uncertainty as to whether Admiral Wiley will remain as Commander-in-Chief more than one year, the unofficial limit at the time of the announcement of his selection to his present position. It is generally understood that Vice Admiral W. V. Pratt is scheduled to "move up" either to command of the Fleet in the event Admiral Wiley comes ashore or to succeed Admiral L. R. deSteiguer, who probably will go to the Third Naval District, in the Battle Fleet. Rear Admiral Nulton, Rear Admirals Thomas J. Senn, assistant chief of operations; W. C. Cole, Commandant Navy Yard, Norfolk; John H. Dayton, at Mare Island; Richard H. Leigh, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, and E. H. Campbell, Judge Advocate General, are prominently mentioned in all discussion of the proposed changes.

One of the departmental problems in the changes will be the selection of relief for Rear Admiral James J. Raby, commanding Aircraft Squadrons, Scouting Fleet, and Rear Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commanding Aircraft Squadrons, Battle Fleet. Officers of sufficient rank who have the aviation status required are limited in number making the filling of these commands difficult.

Retirement of Rear Admiral E. W. Eberle next August will leave Rear Admiral Andrew T. Long as the ranking member of the General Board.

COLONEL GODSON AWARDED FOREIGN DECORATION.

The Secretary of War has been informed by the Secretary of State that a Medal of the White Eagle, Jugo-Slavia, has been awarded Lt. Col. W. F. H. Godson.

MARINE CORPS AIRMAN AWARDED MEDAL OF HONOR.

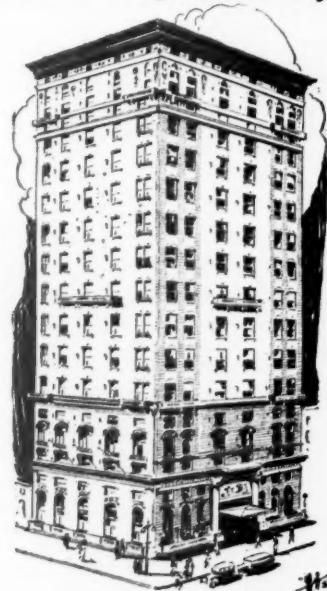

LT. C. F. SCHILT, U. S. M. C., has been cited for the Medal of Honor by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur. The citation reads as follows:

For extraordinary heroism in the face of the enemy distinguished by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty. On the 6th, 7th, 8th of January, 1928, at Guadalupe, Nicaragua, during the progress of an insurrection in that country, Lt. Schilt, then a member of a Marine expedition which had suffered severe losses in killed and wounded, volunteered under almost impossible conditions to evacuate the wounded by air and transport a relief commanding officer to assume charge of a very serious situation. Lt. Schilt bravely undertook this dangerous and vitally important task and by taking off a total of ten times in the rough rolling street of the partially burned village, under hostile infantry fire on each occasion, succeeded by almost superhuman skill combined with personal courage of the highest order, in accomplishing his mission thereby actually saving three lives and bringing supplies and succor to others in desperate need.

Marine Corps Notes

MARINE CORPS orders covering the short pistol course have been issued by Headquarters. Concerning the purpose of pistol practice, Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, U. S. M. C., states:

Although extra compensation and insignia are not authorized for proficiency in the short pistol course, yet all officers in charge of such practice must keep in mind the purpose of this training which is to retain our personnel in a state of proficiency with the pistol. They should, therefore, exert every effort to keep the interest of all participants aroused by introducing the competitive spirit among the coaches and shooters. Awards within the authority of the commanding officer might well be used as an incentive to encourage excellence in the use of the pistol.

Managua, Nicaragua (Special).—The Marine Expeditionary Forces have enlarged their service of supply. From Leon, which is connected by railway with Managua and the port of Corinto, communication by automobile truck was extended to Ocotal, northernmost Marine base. Heretofore Ocotal could be reached only by ox-carts and pack trains, which were subject to ambush, and by airplane.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee went on record March 7 against withdrawal of American Marines from Nicaragua until after the fulfillment of the agreement entered into with the contending factions there for a supervision of the Presidential election next October.

Speaking for a majority of the Committee, Chairman Borah issued a statement saying that the agreement to supervise elections "places an obligation upon us that we cannot at this time escape."

Navy Notes.

DEFEAT of the Frothingham resolution to place Congress on record as favoring the abolition of submarines by international agreement by a vote of six to five, ten not being recorded, in the House Foreign Affairs Committee on March 6, gives promises that before the session is ended sane consideration will be given the crying need of the American Navy for new and modern underseas craft and some provision made for construction of at least a small number that will make possible the development of a type for use with the fleet.

Chairman Porter, leading the fight against the proposal, declared that the "advocates of peace were weary of empty gestures" and that the United States, for instance, had no more right to ask France and Italy to abolish "their only means of defense on the seas than they would have to ask us to abolish our only defense—the Navy."

REITERATING that the Navy program for 20-year replacement is non-competitive and based on the actual needs of the Nation, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur in an address before the McKinley Republican Club, Bay City, Mich., this week called attention to the fact that the project has the President's approval and that it is up to Congress to legislate for a program in accordance with the "duty imposed on that body by the Constitution of the United States and by the people of the United States."

DISCUSSES UNIFORM PROBLEM.

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:
H^{AVING} READ WITH INTEREST some comments anent the "hoped for" blue uniform, I desire to present some further comments.

"DOL" hits the nail on the head when he states that "the crowning objection to date seems to be the cost," and I cannot see that he has answered it.

It seems indisputable that Army officers (especially junior officers), now have a costly list of expenditures, many of which are practically under pressure, e. g.:

Subscriptions to branch journals; polo activities; service dinners, dances, receptions, etc.; Army relief, and Red Cross and presents for members of other officers' families (for the presentation of which they are sometimes not invited), etc., etc.

It may be taken for granted that these things are worthy to the extent that they can be afforded, but the individual frequently has no more choice as to his benevolences than as to the articles which compose his uniform.

In regard to the uniform requirements, they would seem sufficiently complex for the existing pay scale. Necessities in officers' apparel have been set forth in your columns as:

(a) Sport clothes; (b) Business suit; (c) Evening clothes, and (d) Uniform.

However this is certainly an under-emphasis of item (d). The completely equipped officer must now have uniforms as follows:

(1) Service uniform for winter use (including overcoat); (2) Service uniform for summer wear; (3) Summer drill outfit, hat, tie, $12.00 serge shirts, extra breeches, etc.; (4) White dress uniform (required in tropics); (5) White mess jacket uniform (required in tropics).

This makes eight different sets of clothing, which would seem to be about all officers drawing less than $275 per month should be expected to maintain. Men in civil life drawing no more than this seldom have more than three outfits for current wear.

It may be granted that a blue dress uniform might be a desirable further "change," but it certainly is not a necessity. However, the argument has been offered that "blues" would actually be more economical. Let us examine this argument a little. I have seen no mention of a blue "overcoat." Is it proposed to wear the O. D. overcoat with blues? Or a civilian overcoat? Or only to wear blues in warm weather? Just what would a blue uniform, with overcoat, enable us to dispense with? Answer.—One pair of O. D. trousers. It has been stated in these columns that "blues" might be worn "if you wish" upon any occasion that you now wear the business suit or civilian evening dress. Granted.—But would you "wish" to do so? The same may be said of the present uniform. Civilian evening clothes are now listed in Army Regulations under "uniforms," as an appropriate part of an officer's wardrobe, and practically all officers have them and the others are getting them as soon as they can afford the expenditure.

From my conversations with many officers I am led to conclude that most officers wear civilian evening clothes or a business suit, not because of the lack felt for blues, or because they feel that the present uniform is not sufficiently dressy, but because, for the time being, or perhaps because the occasion is appropriate for it, they prefer to associate with their fellows without regard to rank and to avoid the conspicuousness of the uniform. It is a well-known fact that in a civilian gathering the rarely-seen uniform is the cynosure of all eyes. While this is a distinction, it grows a bit wearisome at times, e. g. when traveling with children, shopping, attending public gatherings, etc. At such times one is often rather painfully aware that every move (or even lack of it) is being watched, often quite critically. So one frequently welcomes the comparative seclusion of being, for a time inconspicuous in civies, and how any self-respecting officer could afford not to have civilian clothes is more than I can understand.

No proposed blue uniform would seem desirable or quite appropriate. The only uncomfortable feature of the present uniform is the belt. That is apparently a feature of the most prominently considered (to date) blue uniform. Another suggestion is the standing collar. We discarded that in our present service uniform in order to make it comfortable. It has been asserted that the present uniform does not mean much to civilians. Then why confuse them further by wearing something for which they can see no practical military utility and which will be much more like that of the average bell captain, head porter or chauffeur than the uniform we now have?

We speak of democratizing the Army and popularizing it with the people. How can we convince the ordinary voter with his two suits of clothes that his money is being well spent to provide us with the "luxury" of a dress uniform for which he can see no possible military need?

It has been urged that it be authorized for optional wear. Again let us emphasize our supposed democracy. Should the War Department sanction by regulations the ostentatious dress of those who are fortunate enough to have an outside income or who wish to deprive themselves otherwise in order to "put on the dog"?

ANOTHER D. O. L.

FAVORS RETIRED OFFICERS' LECTURES

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:

WHY not utilize the invaluable life's experience of all Navy and Army Officers after the retiring age of 64 years? Generally the age limit finds our officers hale and hearty in physical health and mentally most ably equipped to meet service, business and all emergencies in the best and most satisfactory way; for they have learned in the school of experience and it is all important that this information should be passed on to their juniors. Why not have classes presided over by these so-called retired officers, where various subjects pertinent to the corps, or ship, or shore stations can be discussed and let this officer express his opinion and tell what he would do under similar circumstances?

These retired officers could also lecture at West Point and Annapolis giving their experiences and suggested remedies for current problems.

This plan would be doubly beneficial, not only to inexperienced youth and junior officers, but would also be of great benefit to our senior officers, by keeping them alert and still in the service, actively, so to speak.

MRS. C. W. SETTLE.

DRESS UNIFORMS FOR ARMY.

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:

THE announcement in your columns that a dress uniform is proposed and probable for the Army is a welcome one. Every one can appreciate the embarrassment of Army officers when they are compelled to appear at social functions clothed in somber Service dress. However, before the Army adopts any new uniform it would be wise to study the problem thoroughly. We of the opposite Service understand the risk run in rapid decisions. Heaven knows the Navy uniform is a poor excuse as a builder of esprit.

After all, a military or naval uniform is designed to fulfill several requirements. It is a distinctive dress to denote Service to the Nation. It is also a question of suitability. But, in my mind, it is primarily, an emblem with which its wearers associate past Service, future hopes. It should, consequently, mean more than a mere dress. The uniform of a subway guard is only one of recognition. The uniform of the Guards is a symbol of something higher and nobler. By all means, the new dress uniform should be of the standard collar variety. Besides, it should be of distinctive coloring, based on the branch of Service. Certain regiments should be permitted to design their own dress uniforms, which would allow them to embody characteristics of their own unit. All designs should, of course, be passed upon by "the powers that be" to insure stability.

Most important is to have a uniform which will be associated with the unit and not confuse our troops with circus performers and theater ushers. The adoption of a new style of cap, if even copied from the French, is advisable. However, surely we Americans can think up some original ideas in uniforms. It seems to me that our present uniforms are poor copies of our late associates. Let us in designing new ones, gather in the details of all armies and choose the best and most pleasing to the eye, as well as the comfort of the wearer.

I can see the parade grounds blazing with color and the children of the post setting forth the beauty of their respective fathers' uniforms. With the adoption of distinctive corps uniforms, there will rise a spirit which is lacking in both services. It is, perhaps, not a spirit which is of things visible, but a spirit of the soul. In peace it creates competition which, in war, insures victory.

Cost will, in this material age, enter into the question of uniforms. It would be better to postpone the adoption of a dress uniform than to produce some uniform which, by mass production, would be inexpensive and yet would not accomplish one of the major requirements of such a dress. Our problem is not to create a man dressed in bright colors, but to produce a uniform which will cause its wearer to don it with a pride which will reflect on the unit and, raising an esprit de corps, will tend to a better spirit for the entire Army.

SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1928.

Only through prospect of increased personal benefit will the mass of men labor devotedly for the prosperity of their employer.—THE GOAL OF LABOR.

WITH THE DISAPPEARANCE of attrition from Congressional consideration in connection with Army promotion reform, we hope the decks will clear for action on certain definite ideas which will be helpful to the Service and avoid further injustice. Congress is unwilling to disregard, except for cause, the Government's contract, made with an officer when he assumed the uniform, and callously throw him back into civil life, even with a bonus. Moreover, Congress realizes the economic waste involved, for all the money spent on an officer during the period of his service, would be more or less lost, except in case of an emergency, and, in that event, the fitness for command would be largely diminished. There is, however, sound reason behind the proposal to make promotions based on service in grades. A bill to this end is now before the two Committees. It should pass before the session closes.

CONGRESS FREQUENTLY IS naive in its incongruousness. The report of the House Naval Committee frankly admits that the new construction program approved by the Committee carries insufficient vessels for the needs of the Fleet and is below the standard of reasonable safety. The action of the Committee was in defiance of the President, who urgently recommended the construction of 71 ships and who recognized that even their construction would leave us under the 5-5-3 ratio established by the Washington Conference. The report further discloses that the disaster to the S-4 was the basis for failure to authorize additional submarines.

Certainly the Committee could not have acted in a fashion more satisfactory to Great Britain, whose policy to remain in control of the seas, by hook or crook, was definitely pronounced at Geneva. The pacifists, whose propaganda was along the lines the British desired, lost in their effort to scrap the Navy, but gained in preventing the United States from approaching the standard essential for national safety.

IT IS DIFFICULT to understand the refusal to authorize the submarines for which the Secretary of the Navy asked. Granted the loss of the S-4 was terrible, it is inconceivable that additional construction of this type should be refused on the ground of inadequate safety devices. One has only to mix with the officers and crews of our submarines to realize the high degree of morale which exists among them, to understand the pride they have in their arm of the Service, to appreciate the value of the craft they operate in connection with national defense. Other nations have had disasters, but have they scrapped their submarines? They have not! They have gone ahead providing their fleets and harbors with this necessary defense, and they will continue to go ahead. No nation appreciates the power of the submarine more than the British—their experience during the World War gave them a healthy respect for it. For the United States, the submarine is especially an arm of defense. Our long distance from Europe and from Asia makes it particularly useful for operations against an enemy fleet attempting to blockade our harbors. Surely, the Senate will not be so blind as to follow the example of the House. For its consideration, in connection with our naval situation, we refer to the editorial which appeared in the Philadelphia Public Ledger and which we reprinted in our issue of last week.

IT IS WITH KEEN REGRET that we note Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones will not be able to participate in the Preliminary Disarmament Conference which is to reassemble at Geneva. Fortunately, this conference is not as vital as that which met at Geneva, but still questions of policy affecting the United States will arise which will necessitate clear headed consideration. There is no doubt, however, that Rear Admiral Andrew T. Long, who will head the American Naval representation, will be able to handle the situation effectively. Thoroughly familiar with the Navy's point of view and a diplomat, he will steer a course which will protect American interests. No one in Washington believes the Conference will result in any real solution of the disarmament question. France has swung around toward the American-British point of view as to tonnage measurements, but she is still adamant with respect to the retention of submarines, and is wary in the matter of land disarmament being separated from discussion and action in connection with naval disarmament. Secretary Kellogg has given explicit instructions to the Delegation, and they are of a character to prevent any loss by the United States as a result of European intrigues.

SELF-INTEREST IS a powerful factor in determining the national policies of every people. We are led to utter this truism from a recollection of the Soviet proposal for the scrapping of all armaments and the reading of the report on Russia's military situation made by Klementy E. Voroshiloff, Russian Commissar of War. While the Red Army is well trained, well disciplined and well organized, with an immense reservoir of men upon which to draw, the industrial backing so essential to its existence is lacking. In metal production, chemicals, transportation, and in other important respects, even in food, Russia is pitifully poor, according to the Commissar of War.

Of course, before M. Tchicherin, the Soviet Foreign Minister, submitted his astounding proposal for the destruction of all armaments, he knew the war making poverty of his government. If trouble should come with the World completely disarmed, Russia, with its huge population, would be able to tower over all its European neighbors. Under the circumstances, the Geneva Conference displayed toward the Tchicherin suggestion the same cynical attitude that, let us say Great Britain, displays when the President of the United States urges Congress to provide additional ships for the Navy in order to establish American equality upon the seas.

D. L. W.: Luke Field, T. H., is located on Ford Island in Pearl Harbor about ten miles distant from the city of Honolulu and is connected with the shore by a 15-minute boat trip to the Naval Fuel Station. There is both bus and train service from there to Honolulu but a private car is considered almost a necessity. There is a post school for children for first three grades. Bus takes older children to town schools. Honolulu public schools are considered quite good. Servants are easily procured, mostly Portuguese, Chinese, and Hawaiians; not the type to stay long. Average rate of pay is about $6 per week. There is a Post Exchange at the Field, Navy Commissary at Pearl Harbor, and Army Commissary in Honolulu. Bus picks up orders at quarters and delivers same day.

A. M. O., Brooklyn, N. Y.—An officer of the National Guard, commissioned by the Governor of a State, has jurisdiction and authority only within the State. Officers of the Regular Army are in the Federal Service, and commissioned by the President.

An officer of the National Guard has the same authority within his command as an officer of the Regular Army. He has no jurisdiction outside of his organization. A captain in the National Guard performs the same duties as a captain in the Regular Army.

The Army War College trains officers in the duties of the General Staff. Officers are detailed there for a course of instruction in General Staff Work.

There are four Negro regiments in the Regular Army: Ninth Cavalry, Fort Riley, Kans.; 10th Cavalry, Fort Huachuca, Ariz.; 24th Infantry, Fort Benning, Ga., and 25th Infantry Regiment, less 1st Battalion, Nogales, Ariz.; 1st Battalion, Camp Harry J. Jones, Douglas, Ariz. At present there are two colored Lieutenant Colonels in the Regular Army. There are no Negroes in the U. S. Marine Corps.

IN THE JOURNAL 60 YEARS AGO

The Navy Department received word from Rear Admiral Davis, commanding the South Atlantic Squadron, that on leaving Rio de Janeiro for Montevideo the U. S. S. Guerriere attained a speed of eleven knots under steam alone but that because of the "foulness of her bottom" this could not be considered a fair test. The U. S. S. Guerriere was Admiral Davis' flagship at the time.

Rear Admiral S. C. Rowan, U. S. N., en route to take command of the Asiatic Squadron, reported to the Navy Department from Rio de Janeiro that he had not had opportunity to test the ship's speed under steam alone, but said in part:

"It affords me pleasure to inform the Department that the flagship Piscataqua maintains her character as a sailer. Under favorable circumstances, wind fresh about abeam, under courses, top-gallant sails, and topmast stunsail, she logged twelve knots, the propeller making thirty revolutions per minute under low steam, and a consumption of seventeen and three-quarters tons of coal per day."

When Food Sours

Sweeten the stomach—instantly

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug-store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

THE WORLD OVER, Miss Irma Schubert tells us, smiles are growing brighter, teeth healthier, by the film-removing dentifrice, Pepsodent

Teeth Sparkle Like Precious Jewels

When dingy film is removed new way

(FREE 10-day test will prove it)

IN hundreds of thousands of cases it is discovered that teeth thought naturally "off color" are actually dazzling white. A film coat makes them lustreless and dull. When you remove it the new way teeth take on a brilliance that amazes. Gums grow firm and pink.

A simple test proves the great truth of this discovery. A test that stars of the stage and screen have made by scores. It has taught them their most important beauty aid.

A new way in tooth and gum care removes the dingy film that clouds your teeth. A film that absorbs discolorations and keeps teeth dingy.

Just run your tongue across your teeth. And you will feel that film. It is the great enemy of pretty teeth and healthy gums.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It forms a breeding place for germs. And germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and other serious troubles.

Ordinary brushing fails in successfully fighting film. And under film are the clear, whiter teeth you envy.

Now modern science has perfected an effective film combatant, called Pepsodent. It acts to curdle film, then to remove it. It firms and protects gums; beautifies teeth quickly and correctly.

MORE PLANES TO NICARAGUA.

TWO more transport planes similar to the three now in service with the Marine Expeditionary Force in Nicaragua are to be delivered early next month and will be dispatched at once to augment the aerial forces in Nicaragua. "Invaluable" is the official comment on questions as to the value of aviation in the operations in the southern republic. It is pointed out that five or six transport planes could keep open the line of supplies to a force of 1,200 in the mountainous and almost inaccessible region where the Marines are operating against Sandino's forces, a task for hundred or more ox-carts which could not maintain operations in the rainy season.

With the reports just received at headquarters here that motor trucks are now able, still with considerable difficulty, to reach the forces north of Matagalpa, the supply problem has been largely solved, but the roads will be impossible to them during the rainy season.

Foreign Military-Naval News

Paris (Special).—Arrangements are being made for the largest naval review and maneuvers which France has held since the war, to take place in June and July, the New York Times reports.

Toward the end of June there will be an assembly at Cherbourg of the whole French Naval Air Force. Among the squadrons of hydroairplanes will be 42 large Goliaths.

In July the whole French naval force will be assembled at Le Havre for a review before the annual maneuvers. Among the ships of the first division of the first squadron will be the first class battleships, Provence, Bretagne and Lorraine. The second squadron will consist of the former German cruisers Strasbourg and Mulhouse and the destroyers Panther, Tigre and Chacal.

It is hoped that two new cruisers, the Tourville and the Duquesne will be in condition for review with also a number of destroyers and submarines at present building under the construction scheme which France laid down five years ago and is steadily completing.

Berlin (Special).—The annual Memorial Day for the war dead of Germany was observed March 5 throughout the country. The Reichstag was draped in black velvet cloth with large silver wreaths tied with black ribbons hanging on its walls. Two catafalques, belching flames, flanked the Speaker's chair.

Aeronautical Notes

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF WAR DAVISON, accompanied by Maj. Gen. J. E. Fechet, Chief of Air Corps, is scheduled to start his flight to Panama tomorrow. Due to the fact that his appearance before various Committees of Congress was required during the past week in connection with Air Corps legislation, Mr. Davison was compelled to postpone his flight to Panama, which originally was scheduled to commence on the morning of March 5.

The official world's altitude record for all types of aircraft is now 11,710 meters or 38,418 feet, held by Lt. C. C. Champion, United States Navy.

The Federation Aeronautique Internationale recently informed the National Aeronautic Association that a recheck of its figures showed that the original mark of 11,723 meters, accredited to Champion in his flight over Washington last July, was inaccurate.

Additional obsolete aeronautical material is now on hand for issue to educational institutions, preference being given those schools which include aeronautical courses in their curriculum, the Navy Department announced March 6.

Radio Notes

CONSIDERATION is being given by the Navy Department to a proposal to discontinue the leased wire now in use between Norfolk, Va., and Washington, D. C.

Recently a test was conducted with a view to this discontinuance and for one week all communication traffic both ways was handled exclusively by radio, leaving the wire unused.

According to the Navy Department Communication Division the era of mechanical transmission of radio messages at high speed is approaching and the day when it will be used exclusively on busy circuits is in sight.

Two types of airplanes are included and a number of aviation engines, magnetos, spare parts, wooden propellers, oil and gasoline tanks, tachometers, gauges, etc.

CHLORAMINE

A blessing to the wounded during the war, Chloramine is today called our most effective sterilizing agent. Improved from the original Dakin solution (Sodium Hypochlorite), Chloramine today is non-irritating to the tissues, nontoxic, colorless, odorless, and in germicidal power superior to the older, odorous disinfectants.

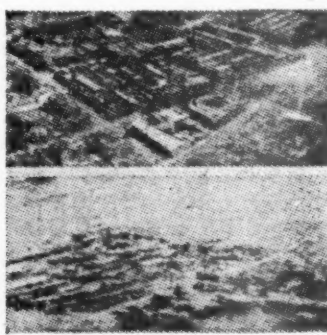

Convenient to carry and use, Chloramine has hundreds of uses—for dressing wounds, abscesses and chronic infections; as a gargle and nasal douche; as a vaginal douche and disinfectant of the genito-urinary tract; for irrigation; on farms and dairies; in home, camp, or field—wherever there is need for a harmless, efficient, sterilizing agent.

No Army Schools' Conference

THE Chiefs of all War Department Branches and the Commandants of all General and Special Service Schools of the Army have been informed by the War Department that "owing to a shortage of funds for the purpose, a conference will not be held during the current fiscal year."

NEW PROMOTION BILL PENDING.

A PROMOTION bill has been introduced in the House by Representative J. J. McSwain, of South Carolina which offers the following as a solution to the problem:

Designates those officers of the Regular Army and Philippine Scouts who shall be considered promotion list officers; changes the present arrangement of Captains and Lieutenants on the list so that officers appointed in those grades from civil life shall rank with officers of the Regular Army according to length of service; provides service-in-grade promotion to First Lieutenant in three years; to Captain in 10 years; to Major in 17 years; to Lieutenant Colonel in 23 years, and to Colonel in 30 years.

It also provides for voluntary separation, with preference to be given to application of officers in the group of 4,599 who were on July 1, 1926 between the ages of 31 and 37; allows a compensation of 2.5 per cent for retired pay for officers with less than 20 years' service and 3 per cent for those with more service; protects any officer from losing his present commission through operation of the bill and abolishes restrictions placed on employment of retired officers.

In support of his measure, Mr. McSwain said in part:

I respectfully submit that this was an outrageous discrimination against those patriotic citizens that served without compensation in the National Guard preparing themselves for war, and who when war came, rendered highly valuable service, which was as valuable as any rendered by Regular Army officers of the same rank. These emergency officers were educated at their own expense, or at the expense of their families, or of their States and their State institutions. Furthermore, most of these emergency officers acquired valuable professional and business experience.

THE Assistant Secretary of War, Col. Chas. B. Robbins, was the guest of officers of the Quartermaster Corps, Regular Army, National Guard and Organized Reserves, at their monthly luncheon held at the Carlton Hotel, Washington, D. C., Mar. 6.

Colonel Robbins spoke of the improvements in the methods of supply since the days of the Philippine Campaign when he went out to the Philippines as a 1st Sergeant in the Nebraska Volunteers.

At the conclusion of the luncheon the Secretary asked the privilege of meeting every officer present and he, together with General Rethers, Acting The Quartermaster General, and General Summerall, Chief of Staff, greeted the officers individually. Possibly the thrill that comes once in a lifetime came to the detachment from the 3d regimental band of the Washington High School Cadets, who volunteered to furnish music for the occasion, when they too formed in line and were personally introduced to Colonel Robbins, the Chief of Staff, General Summerall, and other high ranking officers present.

In addition to officers of the Quartermaster Corps, there were present General Summerall, General Wells, General Fries, Gen. Creed Hammond, Chief of Militia Bureau, who served as a first sergeant in 1898 with Secretary Robbins, General Booth, General Hero, Gen. John L. Clem, U. S. A., ret.

The Post Chapel at the Presidio of San Francisco, was the scene of a pretty military ceremony, on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 26, at 4 o'clock, when the infant son of Capt. and Mrs. Harry Barnes Sepulveda, U. S. A., was christened. The chapel was decorated with greens and candles and silken colors. Capt. Earl Perry, U. S. A., read the Episcopal service and the baby received the name of Edward Stone Sepulveda in memory of Mrs. Sepulveda's father, Mrs. M. E. Merrill, Capt. Harold Eastwood, Cavalry, U. S. A., and Capt. Raymond D. Bell, Infantry, U. S. A., were the sponsors. Capt. Bell, who is with the 5th Infantry, Portland, Maine, was represented by Maj. Alfred Rockwood, C. W. S. U. S. A., as proxy.

Following the ceremony about 60 friends gathered at the Sepulveda quarters for tea. Mrs. Edward Stone and Mrs. James Sepulveda, the mothers of Capt. and Mrs. Sepulveda poured tea and coffee and were assisted in the dining room by Mrs. Thomas Mills. Mrs. Thomas Hayes, Mrs. Harold Eastwood and Mrs. Alfred Rockwood.

Capt. Sepulveda is on duty at 9th Corps Area Headquarters, Presidio, of San Francisco, Calif.

Mrs. W. L. During the past months many parties have been given for Major and Mrs. Hugh M. Rimmer, U. S. A., who leave Little Rock, Ark., in March to make their home in San Francisco. Major Rimmer has been on recruiting duty for the Arkansas District for almost four years. Capt. and Mrs. Jesse H. Green gave a most delightful buffet dinner and bridge. A tiny airplane suspended from the chandelier dropped messages pertaining to the departure of the Rimmers. Capt. and Mrs. Robert W. Brown entertained with a dinner-dance at the new Al Amin Shrine Country Club. Lt. Col. O. D. Longstreth, Inf., O. R., expressed in a few words the pleasure in having the Rimmers in that city the past few years, and that it was the hope of all that before long Major Rimmer would be again in charge of the local office. The favors were miniature photographs of Major and Mrs. Rimmer and their three lovely boys. Mrs. Stanton W. Smith, wife of Lt. Smith, A. S., entertained at a luncheon and theater party for Mrs. Rimmer. The Army and Navy Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Rimmer was an active member, and had been president, presented her with a beautiful leather hat box and overnight bag. Mrs. Frank H. Interesting Service Women

Mrs. Hanford N. Lockwood, Jr.

THERE are many Service women who have undertaken business careers, but more than likely none is engaged in a more unique enterprise than Mrs. Hanford N. Lockwood, Jr., who conducts a weaving shop at her home in Lawton, Okla. She is the wife of Captain Lockwood, U. S. A., of Fort Sill, Okla.

In September, 1926, when she was a patient at Walter Reed Hospital, Mrs. Lockwood was able to do some work in the shops at that hospital, and, as several members of her family were interested in weaving, she was especially attracted to the weaving department, spending considerable time there. Upon returning to her home, which was then at Fort Hoyle, Md., Mrs. Lockwood decided that she must have a loom, so the Captain built her one. After making a number of articles for herself, this enterprising matron thought she would try selling things. At that time she made table runners, bags, ladies' woolen scarves and officers' O. D. mufflers. Naturally, everyone on the Post was very enthusiastic over the work and she was kept very busy.

Conducts Shop in Home.

Last September, Captain Lockwood was transferred to the Field Artillery School and they moved to Lawton. In the meantime, a rug loom had been added to the shop, and bath-mats and baby blankets were added to the list of things for sale. Hand-painted novelties to be used as bridge prizes or gifts were also added to Mrs. Lockwood's shop, which consists of a show cabinet in one end of the living room of her home at 806 E Avenue, Lawton, and the looms in the other end of the room. Most of her customers are from Fort Sill and the officers and ladies of the Post, according to Mrs. Lockwood, have been exceedingly kind about patronizing "The Weaving Shop" and in telling their friends about it.

Is the Mother of Four Children.

This active matron has said that all the work, which she considers most interesting and fascinating, is done in her "spare" time, but we marvel at her ability to find "spare" time, for, in addition to her homemaking duties, she is the mother of four lovely children—two boys (7 and 4 years old) and two girls (aged 2½ and 1 year). Mrs. Lockwood's accomplishments illustrate the veracity of the proverb—"Where there's a will, there's a way!"

(Next week the Army and Navy Journal will print a personality sketch of Mary Jordan, eminent American contralto, wife of Maj. Charles C. Cresson, J. A. G. D., U. S. A.)

FORT RILEY, KANS.

March 4, 1928.

WITH the presentation of an entertainment which in many respects equaled a professional performance, "The Riley Ritz," given Saturday evening, Feb. 25, at Fort Riley, was one of the most successful affairs of its kind ever held on the post. Over 400 people were present at the Godfrey Court room where the "Ritz" was staged. Multi-colored balloons, hanging in festoons from the ceiling, gay banners and bright lights formed the setting for the show. Probably the most popular number of the evening was the pirate chorus. The costumes were the dashing, colorful garb of the pirates of old and from each girle hung a blood-spattered knife. The dances were arranged by Mrs. Hans Kloepper and the songs by Mrs. John J. Bohn. The members of the chorus were Mmes. John B. Thompson, Marion Voorhes, Claude W. Feagin, Gilman G. Mudgett, James M. Callicutt, William O. Johnson, John J. Bohn, Hans Kloepper, Raymond M. Barton, Henry M. Alexander and Miss Madeleine Moon.

A lively and exceedingly humorous minstrel number kept the audience in an uproar the entire time it was on the stage. Mrs. LeRoy J. Stewart, probably the most diminutive member of the post colony, dressed as a colored farm hand, with Capt. Charles F. Houghton, six feet four or thereabouts, as her "sweetie," brought down the house. Capt. Burton C. Andrus was "Mr. Bones." Other minstrels were Col. Charles Harvey, Capt. Claude W. Feagin, Maj. Sidney Bingham, Capt. William H. Bean, Lt. J. D. Kitts, Capt. Walter A. Rose, Capt. Harold Gibson and Chaplain Faye A. Moon. Two dance numbers, one a solo by Mrs. Paul C. Feblger and Lt. M. R. Arteaga, were beautifully done. The vocal solo numbers sung by Mrs. Vaughn M. Cannon were compositions of her own in collaboration with Mrs. Joe C. Rogers and were especially appealing. In one of her numbers, Mrs. Cannon was accompanied by Mrs. Claude Feagin and Lt. Ronald M. Shaw on the ukulele and the cello. Maj. Victor Wales and his musical saw were received with much acclaim. One of the unique features of the entertainment was the living pictures which were shown representing various business houses in Junction City, Mo. Maj. Paul R. Hawley and Lt. William J. Daw put on a radio stunt that was unusual and amusing.

"The Riley Ritz" was sponsored by the Fort Riley Music Club, of which Mrs. D. G. Richart is president. The general committee in charge of the entertainment was composed of Mrs. Richart, Mrs. Elkin Franklin, Col. Charles Harvey and Maj. Sidney Bingham.

Col. and Mrs. L. W. Oliver were hosts at dinner and at the "Riley Ritz" for Maj. and Mrs. Harvey Higley, Capt. and Mrs. Buckley, Capt. and Mrs. J. T. Menzie, STATING that the developments of the last year have focussed attention on the fact that aviation has passed the purely experimental stage, the latest Fornightly Review of G. M.-P. Murphy and Co. after discussing the advance of aviation concluded.

In the early stages of any engineering development, revolutionary changes are particularly likely to occur. Prophecy as to what companies will be the ones to grow is, therefore, particularly difficult, but those which are early in the field, are adequately financed, and have a management awake to the need of being among the leaders in scientific achievement are naturally the most likely to benefit from the growth of the industry.

OUR rapidly increasing clientele among members of the Service is the result of intelligent cooperation with many newcomers to Washington who seek homes or apartments of the better class.

Personnel Board Bill

the approval of such applications in all cases in which approval is discretionary. There will also be officers transferred from the active list otherwise than upon their applications. A board that is constantly engaged in the consideration of the relative merit of officers for the purposes of forming eligible lists, classification, examination for promotion, etc., is undoubtedly the agency best qualified to recommend any involuntary separations from the active list that are necessary in the interest of the Government. In general, it is believed that by its detailed investigations, comparisons, and standardization of requirements the proposed board should become an agency of incalculable value to the national defense.

H. R. 8155, introduced by me to carry into effect their recommendation has also met with the favor of the Secretary of War, who after enumerating the present law regarding the present boards constituted for specific duties and calling attention to the changes effected by this measure, goes on to say:

(Note: The full context of the Secretary's report may be found on Page 435 of the issue of the Army and Navy Journal of January 28.)

"Subject to such amendments as I have indicated, I favor the passage of this bill. It will provide an impartial board of high rank that should be of great value in personnel administration in matters affecting the commissioned personnel. The character and frequent change of its membership and the great responsibility placed upon it should insure action that will conserve the interests of the Government and of individuals so far as compatible therewith.

My approval of the prescribed composition and rotation of membership of the board is of course predicated upon the small increase in the number of major generals of the line recommended in my report upon H. R. 8151. Without such increase there would not be sufficient major generals available for this board and for other necessary assignments."

This measure has created as much, if not more, discussion than any other of the suggested bills affecting the promotion and retirement situation. Whether such criticism as has been directed at the suggestions of the General Personnel Board in this connection are justified can only be arrived at by careful study, and after an opportunity has been given those interested to present their views to the Committee on Military Affairs, so far as the House of Representatives is concerned.

In this connection it is interesting to note that while the House Committee is not giving any active consideration to the subject at this time, there is great interest among the members, as is testified to by the number of bills that are being introduced. Undoubtedly the members introducing these measures will ask for consideration of their proposals at the time the general subject is taken up.

The Secretary of War, in his report calls attention to the fact that certain changes should be made in this bill in order that there might be no misunderstanding that the Board created is to be an advisory agency. There is little question in my mind but that Congress will agree with the Secretary in this and his suggestion will be adopted. However, in view of the magnitude of the task confronting the Secretary, and in view of the fact that no agency now exists to prepare lists of officers eligible for appointment as chief or assistant chief of a branch for adding to or removing the name of an officer for any just reason from the General Staff Corps eligible list, to consider or recommend action in the cases of those who either voluntarily or involuntarily are to be retired in the discretion of the President, and so forth, would indicate the value to him in his administrative duties of such a board as that contemplated in this proposed legislation. So that, while the provisions of this particular bill as presented for consideration and possible action may, and undoubtedly will, call for amendments, and material amendments, not only as suggested by the Secretary of War, but by those who may appear before the Committee, it would seem that the enactment of the legislation will go far to relieve the

we would have been totally unprepared to enter this conflict with our Allies in an endeavor to uphold what we considered our sovereign rights.

The definitions given in section 3 are dangerously broad and their effect would be to put an absolute embargo on an important division of our legitimate foreign trade in articles which have not been and reasonably cannot be used in warfare. For instance, the sweeping terms used in section 3 of the joint resolution would prevent the export of sporting rifles, shotguns, and firearms designed, intended, or adapted for non-military purposes.

The provisions of paragraph 4 of section 3 combined with paragraph 8(c) and paragraphs 9 and 14, would effectually cripple a large portion of our electrical and optical export trade. Practically all fire control systems are dependent upon either land or submarine cable of a commercial type not exclusively designed or intended for warfare purposes. Practically all lenses intended for the higher grade trade may be made use of either in cameras, telescopes or field glasses, which can be used for warfare purposes whether primarily so intended or not.

Paragraph 13, from a practical standpoint, is incapable of being enforced without a total prohibition of the export of all gases, acids, etc., for the reason that the secondaries of all gases or acids, the use of which is sought in warfare, are ing business and marine interests in the country. The memorial is to be dedicated to all Americans who have lost their lives at sea.

Hearing on Transport Service.

A HEARING was held by a subcommittee of the House Committee on Military Affairs on Monday of this week on the several bills introduced for the retirement of licensed officers of the Army Transport Service. The Chairman of the Committee, Mrs. Kahn, of California, and Mr. Kindred, of New York, have each introduced bills.

Lt. Col. A. Owen Seaman, Assistant Superintendent Army Base, Brooklyn, N. Y., explained the duties of the officers of the Transport Service and gave an interesting statement of the retirement systems in vogue among commercial shipping companies. Capt. Hitchcock, master of the Chateau Thierry, was present and was asked a number of questions by members of the committee as to his duties and the work of the officers generally in the Transport Service. Capt. Bernard, Marine Superintendent at the Army Base, Brooklyn, also made a statement urging favorable action on the legislation. It is understood the committee will hold a further hearing at which General Pope, Chief of Transportation, and Colonel Shean, now awaiting retirement, who has been head of the Water
Transportation Division, Quartermaster
Corps, will be heard.

Mrs. Kahn was present and urged the necessity of the legislation in view of the long and splendid service of these men, many of whom started in the service when it was first organized during the Spanish-American War.

purely commercial products whose use in commercial lines is far more extensive than in warfare.

If strictly applied the language of section 3 might be construed as forbidding the exportation of many articles such as steel, copper, starch, and other materials which have many vitally important commercial uses merely because they are capable of being used in the manufacture of munitions.
